EXPECTS LONG WAR.

Okuma Says Per Capita Share of Japanese Expense Will be Twenty Dollars.

(By Associated Press.)
TOKIO, October 6,—In addressing the members of the United Clearing Houses of Tokio to-day, Count Okuma, the leader of the progressive party, warned the people to prepare for a long war, the date of the termination of which it was now impossible to forciell. He predicted the termination of a two-years' that the east to Japan for a two-years'

date of the termination of which it was now impossible to foretell. He predeted that the cost to Japan for a two-years' war, including the loaus which had beer already placed and the expenses consequent upon the war at its termination, would total one billion dollars, which would make the per capitu share amount to twenty dollars.

Count Okuma said that corruption appeared to pervade the military, political and financial departments of the Russian government, and that this corruption had almost reached a climax which threatened a revolution. It was even reported that Lieutenant-General Stoessel, now defending Port Arthur, and upon whose shoulders rested the responsibility for the loss of a large share of Russian prestige in East Asia, was ruilty of dissipation during the siege. The speaker declared that the weaknesses of the Russians gave the Japanese army many victories.

Immense Resources. Immense Resources.

Despite her weaknesses, Count Okuma said, Russia possessed immense resources, and had tremendous advantages in the size of her population and the greatness of her wealth, and it would be necessary for the Japanese to make heavy sacrifices in order to attain success. He predicted that the war would cost Russia from one and a half billion to two billion dollars, and said if would be impossible to raise loans or to increase the taxes in Russia, because the limit had been reached.

The Count predicted that it would be necessary for the Japanese government to borrow $250,00,000 next year, and said that if $15,00,000 were secured abroad the country must face a depreciation in the value of its securities.

Count Okuma urged the nation carefully to husband its strength and resources, and expressed the fullest condence in the ultimate victory of Japanese arms.

Death of the Favorite Servant of the Late R. M. T. Hunter.

the Late R. M. T. Hunter.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LORETTA, VA., October 8.—On Saturday night, October 1st, passed away with Moses Washington, the favorite servant of the late Hon. R. M. T. Hunter, a distinguished landmark of a period of Virginia domestic life, which had almost entirely vanished. He was the same Moses Washington, who was the subject of an interesting reminiscence which recently appeared from Mr. Moncure in The Times-Dispatch. Far past the span of three score and ten, he died as he had lived—a staunch admirer of the principles which he believed should always govern the life of a Virginia gentleman in domestic life. No guest ever visited Southill, the home of the Hunters, without being much impressed by the decided out being much impressed by the dec personality of Moses, as evidenced in manner and behavior in his ministra to the wants of the household. He re-garded himself as thoroughly identified with the fortune, and interests of the white family, which had raised him from infancy, shielded him always from hard white family, which had raised him from infancy, shielded him always from hard or uncongenial labor, and supplied him with overy necessary of life. For many years he was the sexton of St. Matthew's Church, as this was the Episcopal church which the Hunter family attended, although Moses was himself a Baptist by profession. He rairely over attended his own church, as he considered the manners though Moses was himself a Baptist by profession. He rurely over attended his own church, as he considered the manners and customs oil the new colored race decidedly beneath his dignity. Twice married he raised two families of children, but always dept of their want of appreciation of the "traditions of the elders." He never forsook his native county, and lived always with his "white family," as he called them, even going to the most unusual extent of ondorsing their Demogratic views in, politics. He has passed away, but has left in the memory of those who knew him a unique figure of strong, consistent loyalty to the principles he had learned in early life.

in which the orphans of deceased ministers and the children of missionaries are taken care of and squeated. Presbytery urged all the churches to contribute liberally to its support.

The following paper, on a subject of great interest to all the Presbyterian Church, was offered by Rev. J. S. Foster, of Petersburg, and was adopted: .

Whereas, the general assembly has appointed a Committee on Conference with other Presbyterian and Reformed chiprehes in "a desire to promote close relations in the spirit of love and candor"; and, whereas, this confinitee is authorized only to "secure such information as shall assist the whole church to intelligently consider the question of closer relations, which has been so often before the assembly, by presenting to our people in concise form the sentiments of the churches on the subject, the obstacles that may stand in the way of closer fellowship, whether and how such obstacles can be removed, and what may be the nature and form of the relations which shall best secure offective cooperation, and at the same time preserve loyally to those great principles for which the various churches have been called loyally to those great principles for which various churches have been called to testify."

Resolved, That this Presbytery, in the light of the overtures and communication before the assembly, and the purpose contemplated by the appointment of the committee, does hereby express its pleasure at its action; and that the real sen-timent of the church may be ascertained. We desire to say that we do not think the present time favorable for considering the matter of organic union with expected from all those who love God. 2. Let no one in distress despair, but remember that God is a very present help in time of need (Psalm xivil), and he is able to do abundantly above all we ask or 'afik (Ephi. ili:20), and has made his ministers the dispensers (Matt. xi8) of his gifts.

2. It is well for a land when the servants of God espuse the cause of the afficied and use their influence to bring relief, one of the highest exhibitions of good character. 4. It generally occurs that the gift of God is an expansion of something aiready possessed, as the increase of the widow's oil was the Divine method of her relief. What we have in the connecting link with what we shall have. 5. As far as possible a whole family should un'te in executing those directions that bring God's blessing a little work for each in the one great undertaking. 6. The proper use of God's gifts in the high mark of wisdom—not all for self, but first a part to meet the claims of others. After dobts are paid the worth of the remainder is increased.
